

Day trips to Window Rock to view the Treaty of 1868 June 16 & June 23

Between 1863 and 1866, the US Army marched about 11,500 Diné people 400 miles to a desolate reservation at Bosque Redondo in New Mexico. In 1868, the Navajo became the only Native Nation to use a treaty to escape removal and return to their home.

The treaty has been stored in the national Archives in Washington D.C. since it was written. Now, for the first time in history, this treaty is available to the public for viewing at the Navajo Nation Museum from June 1-30! Then it will be returned to the National Archives vault.

TRIP ITINERARY:

Departs from a secure lot in Albuquerque. Park your vehicle or have someone drop you off. Wheels are rolling at 6:30AM sharp!

Bring your pillow, bring snacks, drinks and food. One small cooler per person.

The coach is equipped with reclining seats and a restroom on board. We will take a leg stretch in Gallup before arriving at the Navajo Nation Museum at 10:30AM.

Be prepared to stand and wait. This historic event could draw a large crowd on weekends, we hope to avoid long lines by arriving early.

If you did not bring your lunch, the museum has a coffee shop. McDonald's and Taco Bell are nearby and the Quality Inn next door has good food in their restaurant.

There will also be time to visit the arts & crafts exchange and we will drive to Window Rock itself and see the Veteran's Memorial.

At 3PM we'll be rolling toward Albuquerque in air conditioned comfort. We'll watch a movie or you can take a siesta. We'll make one stop along the way arriving ABQ by 6:30PM.

We hope you enjoyed our tour. We hope you made a few new friends on the bus and we know you have priceless memories of your visit to the Navajo Nation Capitol and of personally experiencing a part of our nation's history!
